FUNDRAISING IDEAS

Want to fundraise for The Cradle and help support families but aren't sure where to start? Here are a few ideas to help get the ball rolling.

For Individuals & Groups

DONATE YOUR SPECIAL OCCASION: Do you have a birthday, wedding, graduation, baby shower or other celebration coming up? In lieu of gifts, ask your friends, family and colleagues to donate to The Cradle to mark your special day!

RUN A RACE: Participate in a 5K, marathon, triathlon or any organized race in support of The Cradle! Ask friends and family to make a flat donation or to donate for each mile you run — raising funds for The Cradle while promoting awareness of our mission (and staying healthy!) at the same time.

TRIVIA NIGHT: Host a trivia night with your friends or family, charge a small fee to participate and donate the proceeds to The Cradle! This can also work for other events like dinner parties or movie nights and is a great way to spend time with the people that matter to you while supporting a cause you believe in.

FUNDRAISE WITH A TWIST: Host one of the fundraisers above — or any of the classics like a bake sale or car wash — but up the ante by doing something silly every time you hit a fundraising milestone. For example, when you hit $1,000, you'll wear a Halloween costume to work or class.

PARTICIPATE IN GIVING TUESDAY: Join us for Giving Tuesday, a global day of giving celebrated annually on the Tuesday following Thanksgiving. Visit our website to create your own fundraising page, share your story, spread the word and even compete for the top spot on our fundraising leaderboard!

SPRING CLEANING: Been meaning to clean out your closet, but just haven't gotten around to it? Take unused clothes or household items and sell them online or through a garage sale. Then donate the proceeds to The Cradle, making a difference in your community while decluttering your space at the same time!

For Companies & Businesses

DONATE A PERCENTAGE OF PROCEEDS: Pick a specific time frame to donate a percentage of your proceeds to The Cradle! For example, if your business sells consumable or material products like food or clothes, you can donate a percentage of every sale; if you offer services like yoga or art classes, you can donate class fees. Create a marketing campaign to attract customers for a specific day, week or month you will be donating a percentage of your proceeds to charity!

CASUAL DAYS: An easy way to get your office to raise money for The Cradle is to incentivize donations. One way to do this is to host a “casual day” at the office. Once a month, employees who make a minimum donation can dress casual to the office! Other incentives could include pizza parties, raffle entries, gift cards and even time off.

MATCHING GIFTS: Through a corporate gift matching program, companies match financial donations made by their employees to qualified charities, doubling or even tripling their impact! Sixty-five percent of Fortune 500 companies offer matching gift programs, and 84% of donors report they would be more likely to donate if a match was offered by their employer.

WORKPLACE GIVING: Workplace giving programs enable employees to donate to charities like The Cradle directly from their paychecks through automatic payroll deductions. These deductions are usually small but can quickly add up, allowing your company to provide significant financial support to organizations like The Cradle over time.

PRO BONO SERVICES: If your company can donate professional services like graphic design support, legal advice, financial services, etc., it means more of our budget can go directly toward our mission of uplifting children and families. Pair this with incentives like the ones listed above to facilitate your employees’ generosity!

YOUR IMPACT

The amounts listed below are examples of what your generous efforts will provide to infants, parents and families in our community. Include them on your fundraising page and in your outreach to help people understand the real impact of their support!

$25 - Provides one day's worth of diapers for all the babies in our Nursery

$500 - Certifies all Cradle nurses in infant CPR for one year

$100 - Provides one hearing test for an at-risk baby in our Nursery

$1,000 - Keeps our 24/7 expectant parent helpline running on evenings and weekends for four months

$125 - Offsets the cost of one expectant parent counseling session

$2,000 - Pays for special needs assessments for 10 at-risk infants

Fundraising Tips

Set a fundraising goal. Setting a specific goal will both galvanize your network to give and help you track your fundraising progress. Feel free to start with a modest goal and then increase it as you receive more donations!

Make a seed donation. To jumpstart your campaign and show people you're serious about hitting your goal, be the first one to donate. This will help set the bar and encourage others to join you.

Personalize your fundraising page. The more you personalize your fundraising page, the more likely visitors are to donate. Add photos, graphics and a story to give your campaign a personal touch. If you really want to go all-out, film a personal video explaining what The Cradle means to you, which is shown to boost donations by 150%!

Talk about the WHY. Tell your network why The Cradle matters to you. Do you have a direct connection to adoption? Are you fundraising in honor of someone? Including this information will make friends and family even more inspired to give!

Acknowledge gifts. Did you know that 44% of donors are motivated to give again after a prompt acknowledgement of their gift? Send a message to those who donate or tag them on social media to say thank you!

Social Media Tips

Keep it short. Concise posts resonate best, so get to the point quickly.

Opt for visuals. Make your posts stand out by including engaging images or videos.

Recommend sharing. Expand your reach by making it easy for friends and family to share your post.

Create a hashtag. This will help your audience easily find and share your posts.

[Name], I just reached my fundraising goal of $[X] for The Cradle! Thank you SO MUCH for pitching in. I hope you're proud that you helped change a child's life!

“I wanted to give back to the organization that gave to me.”

Jala And The “Phoenix Phund for Phamilies”

Jala’s peer fundraising journey began one year after she adopted her daughter, Phoenix, from The Cradle. “As an African American single woman, I never thought I would be able to adopt a child,” she recalls. “The Cradle was the only agency at the time that would even consider me.”

She was also deeply grateful for the Nursery, which helped Phoenix have a strong start in life. “By hosting a fundraiser, I wanted to give back to the organization that gave to me.”

Armed only with text and email in the pre-social media age, Jala raised an astounding $10,000 in support of The Cradle’s programs! Her passion for the work was infectious, which made the money come easy. But she was just getting started.

A few years later, inspiration struck again. Jala’s 50th birthday was approaching, and she wanted to do something special. “I thought to myself: What’s the biggest gift I’ve ever received? My daughter, of course. That’s when I decided to host the second fundraiser.”

This time, she had more tools at her disposal. Embracing the power of social media, Jala and Phoenix hosted a Facebook livestream to announce their campaign.

“It was important to involve Phoenix and bring her story to life,” says Jala. “Everybody loves a fairytale.” As the fundraiser progressed, the two continued to post regular updates and reminders across all of Jala’s social media accounts.

The Cradle was there to provide support every step of the way. “The Cradle showed up for me and was highly receptive and grateful. They made it easy with the personal fundraising page, which I wrote and they built for me.” Jala also added a unique incentive to her campaign: all donors would receive an invitation to her 50th birthday party, which also served as the fundraiser’s deadline.

The end result? An incredible $20,000 raised for The Cradle! With two incredibly successful campaigns under her belt, Jala shares her hard-earned wisdom for aspiring peer fundraisers:

Jala’s Tips

1. Utilize social media to publicly recognize and thank donors. Announcing donations is also a good time to gently reengage your audience.
2. Make the fundraiser time-bound, typically no more than 60 days, and culminate in an event.
3. Provide an incentive, which, in Jala’s case, was an invitation to her birthday party.
4. Use photos and videos to really bring your story to life.
5. Quantify donation amounts to communicate each gift’s impact (see page 4).

THANK YOU!
